

I fully agree the cw testing should be eliminated from Amateur Radio Exams.

CW is an outdated mode and is not or used in any of the commercial services, maritime distress frequencies, etc. Lets modernize the Amateur Service, dont let the comment "I learned code so all should learn code" prevail. If an amateur wants to use cw, that is fine, but the majority of hams dont use it to any extent.

I see no benefit to the Amateur Service to retaining the code requirement in its exam structure.